

Perinatal Loss Support Group

Have you experienced a miscarriage, still birth, or loss of a newborn?

Do you need a safe place to share memories and feelings about your baby?

Would you like to connect with other families who have had a similar experience?

You are invited to attend the perinatal loss support group at Valley Medical Center. Our goal is to provide a supportive environment that will give you comfort and hope for the future. This parent group is member-led by those who have traveled a similar journey who may offer insight into what you are experiencing. While peer support does not replace professional counseling services offered by trained professionals, this group is free of charge and open to any parents in the community who need a safe place to share their stories.
